Modals of Advice

Definition Check

Advice: suggestions about what you think someone should do or how they should do something.

You already know how to use modal verbs when you say:

"I will do my homework," and "I might not go to the store."

Modals of advice work in the same way.

The pattern we will follow is:

subject + modal verb + (negative) + main verb in base form + object

Compare these two sentences:

I will do my homework.

I should do my homework.

Do you see how they follow the same pattern?

Knowledge Check!

Fill in the blank with the correct form of wear.

Select the correct sentence

---

- Juan should to wear a shirt.
- Juan should wears a shirt.
- Juan should wear a shirt.

Other modals of advice

Today you have already practiced using the word should to give advice.

Here are some other modals of advice:

Ought to: Juan ought to wear blue.

Had better: Avani had better wear orange.

Strength of advice

Sometimes we have to use stronger words to give advice.

Flip the cards below to see which is the strongest and which is the weakest.

You ought to wear a jacket.

Ought to is the weakest way
to give advice.

You should wear a jacket.

Should is the most common way to give advice. It is neutral.

You had better wear a jacket.

Had better is the strongest way to give advice.

Practice sorting the words into the correct category:

Weakest

You ought to exercise today.

You ought to eat the sandwich.

You ought to wear a scarf.

You ought to go outside.

Neutral

You should go to the gym every day.

You should order a pizza.

You should wear a jacket.

You should go to the park.

Strongest

You had better work out!

You had better get me tacos!

You had better wear your hat.

You had better go to the store!

It is cold outside and Marie is going on a walk. Should she wear a bathing suit or a hat? Use the word "should" to tell Marie what to wear.

Write your own invitation!

On a piece of paper or on your computer, create your own invitation.

Make sure it includes the following:

- 1 Date, place and time
- 2 What the party is for
- 3 What is the theme of the party?
- 4 What is the dress code?

Here are some examples of what your invitation might look like:

Baby Shower

Graduation Party

Birthday Party

Anniversary Party
